Presents

The Teacher as an Academic Intervention First Responder: How to Fix and Find Academic Skill Deficits

As students move into the higher grades, they can bring with them a cascade of academic deficits--making it difficult for teachers to select appropriate interventions. This full-day workshop is designed for general-education classroom teachers and special educators in grades 3 through 12. The training shows instructors how to sort rapidly through multiple student issues to find the right academic target(s) and to create a manageable and effective classroom intervention plan. The presenter, Jim Wright, will share ways to:

- Document intervention plans to increase student success
- Pinpoint student gaps in reading, math, and writing skills
- Provide research based academic interventions
- Provide methods to track student progress using classroom data

Saturday, September 13, 2014
